VICE CHANCELLOR

PROF. STEPHEN GITAHI KIAMA,
Vice-Chancellor, UoN

// I am elated to see that the CIPR at the University of Nairobi that started recently is already celebrating its 3rd Graduation Ceremony. It is something to be proud of and to see the level of impact that the University continues to have not only in the continent but globally.

Congratulations graduands! I am sure it was no mean fete. Nothing good comes easy. In this dispensation that we are in, where the landscape is evolving so fast, I keep affirming that individuals and the University must strive to stay vibrant and relevant. Keep carrying the PR torch wherever you go.

The University continues to leverage on the partnerships that we have; I am grateful to the CIPR Awarding Body that has continued to work with us, to mould you as practitioners that can support the delivery of business objectives with professional touch.

I would also like to thank and congratulate our staff members who have dedicated their time and effort to oil the wheels of the CIPR-UoN Accredited Teaching Centre. It is said that when you see something is working, someone is definitely making it work. We honour the sacrifice.

In this AI era, you have to take some time to reflect on your day to day input and output. Questions like, how can a PR practitioner leverage on Artificial Intelligence, to scale the output? to strengthen the level of impact? Or are you among the ones who will be replaced? Are you discovering innovative ways of reporting to management? New ways to position your brand?

Of late, I have had the privilege to benchmark with different institutions of higher learning in different continents. I have picked up a few challenges and the university management and I are committed to lead the institution through a paradigm shift in technology and innovation in its core mandate of research, teaching and learning. We are at a season of repositioning our researchers and working with industry leaders to shape the young minds.

Given that the University sailed through the global pandemic, Covid-19, we must always stay vigilant, continue having conversations on how to stay afloat amid all the other global crises.

Congratulations once again to all graduands! Go ye and practice disruptive PR!

CIPR Programs Coordinator at UoN ATC

// A big congratulation to all our CIPR granduands of 2023. It is wonderful achievement to be CIPR qualified. Without being economical with words, you are now globally recognized PR experts and welcome to the club.

Getting CIPR qualified is not for the faint hearted. It is a tough program that requires a lot of commitment and sacrifice. I am very proud of you because you have shown great resilience by completing this program. Some of your colleagues dropped out and some are still struggling to complete. As a University, we believe in excellence and the CIPR program is tailored made to bring out that excellence through your work and contribution to the PR industry.

Every CEO or rather every organization value working with professionals because professionalism contributes to quality customer service and success of the organization. Lack of requisite professional skills may compromise one's growth and at worst put him/her first in line for lay off. The Professional training you have acquired will help you understand the PR industry, the basics of the profession, the rules of the game and the advanced strategies. More importantly, and thanks to the UoN CIPR faculty, you are now in a position to demonstrate with ease the value proposition of PR to your organizations.

During your CIPR journey at the UON accredited teaching Centre, you learned how to employ strategic public relations to position brands and support attainment of business objectives of your organizations.

You have gained completely new skills in PR and I strongly believe that you are going to breath freshness in the execution of PR functions in your organizations.

I also believe that the program has raised your confidence and market value. With such an expanded knowledge and skills in Public Relations it is very much anticipated that you are soon going to get higher rewards for your professional work. I believe, it was a worthy investment to pay 2,550 dollars and graduate with a reputable global qualification that not only give you a sense of fulfillment and entitlement, but also open floodgate of opportunities for you in different parts of the world.

Getting a professional qualification in your area of interests is a show of commitment and dedication to the profession. Many of you have sacrificed and paid own fees/without sponsorship to undertake this program. This portrays you as serious, persistent and people willing to learn and prepared to take more responsibilities.

In the words of David Maister, " Believe passionately in what you do, and never knowingly compromise your standards and values. Act like a true professional, aiming for true excellence, and the money will follow'. Having qualified to join the membership of a reputable professional PR body, your actions will be required to be consistent with the CIPR ethical values and standards. Do not compromise your professional standards for monetary rewards.

CIPR connects and CIPR Qualification will connect you to the right people. Starting with your classmates to members of the Professional association, you now have direct networks with influential people in the Industry. In this era of globalization, knowing the right people in various spaces is very important because social capital is one the critical success factors today.

Finally, I ask you to go out there and become good ambassadors of the CIPR program and ambassadors the university of Nairobi CIPR ATC. Go out there and create impact in your organizations through:

- The way you articulate your company vision, values and business strategies with passion.
- The way you interact with your stakeholders to build strategic partnerships.
- Generation of innovative contents to market your products and services and
- Writing strategic narratives to position your brands.

Once again thank you and Congratulations to CIPR class 2023 for your achievement.

From PROGRAMME COORDINATOR

NEEMA G. MUTEMI, MCIPR

CIPR Course Lead

University of Nairobi ATC

// You have finally made it here! Congratulations to you. Please take a moment to celebrate this achievement. I know you don't need me to remind you how tough the journey was, but I am so immensely proud of each one of you for getting to this point.

As you embark on the next exciting chapter in your careers, you will be doing so in a rapidly evolving world. As we stand on the precipice of a new era, we find ourselves amid an AI revolution that is reshaping industries and transforming the way we communicate. The field of public relations is no exception. The industry is constantly under pressure in the face of a technological evolution, it is therefore essential for PR practitioners to adapt and embrace change swiftly. The key question you should keep asking yourself is: What do I need to do to remain relevant and ensure I bring value to my employer/clients?

As a first step, I would like to remind you that you are not alone. Over the last 12 months or more, you have travelled this CIPR Journey with your colleagues. Please keep that network. I also encourage you to be active members of the CIPR. This is a prestigious network that you finally belong to. Take advantage of the resources and network that it offers and set yourself apart by wearing your CIPR title with pride! Please remember to renew your membership annually and keep yourself enlisted in the CIPR Global register. This will mean that you are making a life-long commitment to uphold the highest ethical standard in your practice.

Secondly, amidst this AI revolution, the human touch has become even more critical. Working in PR means you will be working with reputations and organisations and their stakeholders are comprised of human beings. As practitioners, your ability to connect with people on an emotional level, to understand their needs and aspirations, will be your greatest asset. While algorithms can process data, they lack the empathy, creativity, and intuition that are inherent to human beings. Use this to your advantage. Build authentic relationships, tell compelling stories, and create meaningful connections that resonate with your audience.

Lastly, continuous learning and up-skilling are essential. The pace of technological advancement is relentless, and staying updated with the latest tools and trends is vital. Embrace lifelong learning, attend workshops, pursue certifications, and stay curious. By doing so, you will not only remain relevant but will also become a trusted advisor who can navigate the ever-changing PR landscape. CIPR requires that its members commit to continuous professional development. Once you receive your Certificate, you will have qualified for your first 60 CPD points for your first year! If you accumulate an another 60 CPD points for the next two years, you will be eligible to apply for Chartership! There are lots of free resources available to members so welcome aboard!
